93,000,000 OF BANQUE'S FUNDS WENT TO PARASITE

Pacific Company "An Occult Branch" Of Bank

DEAL DESCRIBED

Inquiry Reveals Numerous Shady Operations

(Reuter's Special Service)

London, April 25.—A Paris despatch states that the report of M. Cord of the Financial Affairs Section, which led to the inquiry into the affairs of the Pacific Maritime and Commercial Company describes the company as "an occult branch of the Banque Industrielle de Chine" and says that M. Albert Gallusser made the acquaintance of M. Pernotte in Tientsin. M. Pernotte advanced him money and in July, 1918, helped him to found the Pacific Company with a capital of 1,500,000 francs which was successively raised to 25,000,000 francs.

M. Pernotte and M. Gallusser are alleged to have formed a syndicate for the flotation of Pacific Company shares at 400 francs which they first bought in at 200 francs and pocketed the difference. The Bourse quotation of the shares rose to between 450 and 500 francs and then fell to 20 francs.

When it was decided to transform the Pacific Maritime and Commercial Company into the Pacific Company, fresh funds were raised, it is alleged without the knowledge of the Board of Directors who were befooled by fictitious statements and accounts.

M. Gallusser declares that when he quitted control, the Pacific Company owed the Banque Industrielle 93,000,000 francs, but the debt ought to have been diminished by at least half by the realisation of floating stocks worth 40,000,000 francs.

He admits that the syndicate of which he and M. Pernotte were members realised a profit of 200 francs per share, on 24,000 shares, but the profit went to buy in shares at 600 and 700 francs in order to secure an option for the subscription of fresh capital.

Peking Legation Sensation Revived By Trial In Italy Of Wife Of Ex-Minister

Announcement Marchesa Durazzo Is To Answer Charges Bears Out Statement Made Here Last Year By Maria Cioci

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, April 24.—The Marchesa Durazzo, the wife of the Italian Minister to China who is alleged to have attempted to murder a rival in a Peking hotel, has left the nursing home where she was detained since she returned from China.

She was taken in a closed motor car to an unknown destination, probably Ancona, where she will shortly be tried by the Court of Assizes in camera.

The foregoing dispatch bears out in some measure the remarkable statement that was made in Shanghai last August by Signora Maria Cioci, central figure of the sensational tragedy that so deeply stirred legation circles at Peking. Signora Cioci was attacked and almost killed in the Hotel des Wagons Lits and several days later Captain Pitri, Assistant Commercial Attache of the Italian Legation killed himself.

Signora Cioci made this statement here while on her way to Italy and in it she asserts that the attack upon her in the Peking hotel was made by the Marchesa Durazzo.

Before she left Shanghai she made the startling charges that she was influenced by Captain Pitri and Italian officials of the Legation to sign a supposed death-bed confession that her wounds were due to an attempt at suicide, thus clearing Signora Durazzo; and that on her second trip to Peking, made on the instructions and urging of Captain Pitri's family for the purpose of bringing the latter back to Italy, Italian Consular officials along the route attempted to prevent her reaching the capital.

In support of the former charge Signora Cioci gave out a copy of a statement which she declares was given her voluntarily by Pitri just before he shot himself, to the effect that the "suicide" statement was not true, but had been given because of Signora Cioci's love for him. She calls attention also to the certificate given by the doctor who attended her, which states that her wounds could not, in his opinion, have been self-inflicted.

Signora Cioci sailed for Italy by the Lloyd Triestino line August 26. She said that she had retained legal counsel and that an account of the affair had been sent to Ancona, where it was understood Italian authorities conducted an investigation and where the trial is expected to take place.

Signora Cioci was still suffering from the effects of the attack made upon her. Her right wrist, which was badly slashed, was in splints and her right hand was gripped by a paralysis which her physician said may be permanent. Her forehead, almost the entire top and back of her head, her left wrist and her right shoulder were marked with jagged scars.

The attack on Signora Cioci occurred on the night of June 9 and Captain Pitri shot himself on the night of June 13. The affair was swathed in mystery and on July 15 the Italian Legation issued a statement to the effect that it "did not admit" certain reports and published matter but that an inquiry was being conducted. The Italian Minister sailed from Tsingtau for Italy on July 21.

TELLS OF TWO TRIPS

Signora Cioci gave a definite statement of her movements since January 20 when she reached the Grand Hotel de Pekin, from which she phoned the Italian Legation. Captain Pitri who had been her friend for nine years, came advising her not to stay. He suggested that it would save money to rent a Chinese house, but later she proposed to return to Italy owing to lack of funds. He promised to join her there in four months and wired the Triestino Lloyd s.s. Pilsen for accommodations for her, a single cabin being reserved. Later he cancelled this as she decided to stay in Shanghai.

Due to change in plans she left on the Pilsen, February 7

WAR DELAYS SETTLEMENT OF WALK-OUT OF POSTMEN

Peking Must Authorise Action But Wire Lines Broken

POLICE RECALLED

Mail Distribution Only Being Made To Public From Stations

Truck drivers of the Chinese postal service yesterday joined the four hundred mail carriers who struck at a moment's notice on Monday night demanding increased wages, shorter hours and exemption from the regulation requiring that postal employes deposit a proportion of their earnings in the Postal Savings Bank. While the postal authorities believe that the strikers have begun to waver in the stand they have taken no indication that any large number of them intend soon to return to work was apparent through the day yesterday.

The postal authorities here are wholly powerless to grant any concessions, even should such a move be deemed advisable. Their authority is derived from Peking and action that may be taken in connection with the present situation can only be authorised by Peking. For this reason, unless the strikers yield voluntarily, the tie-up must continue for an indefinite number of days because communications between Shanghai and Peking are seriously interrupted due to the military operations in the North. How soon Peking can move in the matter of the strike and notify Shanghai is a matter of doubt.

SIGN OF TROUBLE

The first indication of trouble in connection with the walk-out developed last night about 6 o'clock when groups of the strikers who had congregated through the day in the yard of the main office and in the street outside attempted to hamper the work of dispatching consignments of mail by motor cars to sub-stations. The men who were doing this work were hooted and menaced until a call brought a number of police from Central Station who swiftly restored order. A heavy police guard remained near the building through the night.

It is known that the strike was developed largely through the efforts of one Chinese, a labor agitator who played an active part in the recent seamen's strike at Canton and who, according to the postal authorities, has a police record here. This agitator with a committee of the strikers visited the postal administrative offices yesterday morning and presented a formal statement of demands. Though it was explained that no action can be taken here without the sanction of Peking and that Shanghai at the moment is more or less out of communication with the capital the delegation of strikers and their leader apparently were unmoved.

SCALE OF PAY

Novices among the mail carriers in their first year of service receive $12 a month. This wage is increased with length of service approximately at the rate of $1.50 a year up to the point where it amounts to $30 a month. In addition a Chinese New Year bonus of a month's pay is given and through the working of an elaborate scheme the men and, in the event of their death in service, their families derive certain financial allowances and benefits from the service. A requirement that touches all postal employes from lowest to highest is that a fixed proportion of the worker's earnings must be put on deposit in the Postal Savings Bank. This is from fifty cents to one dollar a month, depending on the size of the man's earnings. The money so deposited is at once payable to any who quit the service or in event of death to families of workers.

In the present dispute the carriers are asking a flat increase of $5 a month. They demand that their work day be shortened from ten hours to nine hours and they demand payment of sums they have on deposit in the Postal Savings Bank with future exemption from the re-

Worshippers At Taishan Take Their Rites Seriously

By Elsie McCormick

(This is the fifth article of a series on Taishan, the sacred mountain of Shantung).

The first view of Taishan's summit is an anticlimax. A tumbledown temple to Kwan-Ti, unattended by priests because they find the wind too chilly, is all that lies behind the South Gate of Heaven. A narrow trail, no wider than a path through a rice-paddy, straggles out of the courtyard and eventually into an unornamental Chinese village. Though the priests find the weather too cold, the beggars and merchants seem to thrive on it. At least there are houses by the wayside selling the usual line of staple and fancy incense and strictly fresh ghost-money.

It seemed to us that there was enough incense burned on Taishan to purify the Chinese atmosphere down to the last fish-market. Unfortunately, however, the fragrance doesn't seem to extend beyond the temple courtyards; in fact, if you were blindfolded, led into the village we just mentioned, and asked to guess what is produced there, incense is about the last thing that you would be likely to name. Fragrance, like charity, ought to begin at home.

NORTH STAR TEMPLE

Farther on one passes the square little temple to the North Star, a small red cube perched near the summit. To the philosophers of Tao, the North Star is the symbol of perfect balance, of eternal equilibrium kept between the two contesting forces of ying and yang. As this star remains fixed in Heaven, so the soul should remain fixed in the flow and flux of human experience. There is a touch of sublimity in that little North Star Temple, a touch sufficient to show that in its beginnings at least, Taoism was something besides a system of fairy lore rewritten for grownups, and a bit of nature worship disguised by heroic legends.

A little beyond is the Confucian Temple, as deserted as a fifty year old wall-flower at a Debutantes' Ball. There are high walls around the enclosure, though we don't know just what good they do. Certainly they are not needed to keep anyone out, as there is nothing inside to take and nobody wants to go in, anyway. The pilgrims may reverence Confucius at other times, but his cold ethics have small attraction for them when they are close to the sumptuous temple of the Lady of the Many Colored Clouds. They are in a mood to demand color and ecstacy and the right of adoration, not to consider long essays on how to dismount from one's horse when approaching a superior, or other points of etiquette. Confucius refused to build up a system of theology and is therefore passed by when men are in a mood to worship.

LADY OF THE CLOUDS

Set squarely across the path is the entrance to the temple where the Lady of the Many Colored Clouds extends her golden hands to those who have done forty li's worth of penance. The courtyard is as busy as a municipal tax-collector's office the day before the taxes become delinquent. The golden lady, robed in heavy embroidery, sits in a small house in the middle of the court and wonders what all the racket is about. At the entrance great braziers consume table d'hote orders of ghost money; in the smaller chapels at either side anxious parents are engaged in propitiating the goddess of vaccination and would-be parents are investing in little sacred dolls, each one of which receives a name to be borne by the future child.

There is an earnestness among the worshippers not usually noticeable in Chinese temples. Few men and no bound-footed women would struggle up Taishan unless there was something fairly serious on their minds, and the importunity of their prayers is evident in every gesture. There is no careless kowtowing on one knee, no casual depositing of incense sticks without an interruption of local gossip. Few faces bear the self-conscious smirk so often noticeable elsewhere when a Chinese carries out his religious devoirs in the presence of foreigners. Every pilgrim is considerably more serious than he would be at a funeral; as serious, in fact, as if he was discussing the sale of his shop.

The main hall of the temple is latticed up by narrow boards and cannot be entered. By hanging on to the wooden bars, one can see a more than life-sized lady looking down on a temple floor carpeted to the depth of several inches by coins, satin shoes, cakes, and silver ornaments thrown in by enthusiastic pilgrims. It is our belief that the happiest occasion of the year to the monks is the day at the end of the season when they bring on the vacuum cleaner.

ALWAYS MORE

There is always more to Taishan. The visitor thinks he has reached the summit when he passes the Half-Way House; he is certain of it when he achieves the South Heavenly Gate; and he is absolutely positive when the chair-bearers set him down in the courtyard of the Lady Temple. But a path leading out through a moon-gate tells him that he shouldn't put his adjectives back in their cases just yet, because there will be a few more places to use them. This is our fifth article on Taishan and we haven't reached the top yet.

Few of the pilgrims, however, go out beyond the Lady Temple. The courtyard is as confused as an assemblage of strikebreakers, but out on the real summit there is solitude and peace. Beyond the moon gate, one finds the Temple of the Sleeping Lady, where the same overworked goddess is allowed a beauty nap of six months every year. We saw her stretched out under gorgeous red covers on a Chinese canopied bed, her placid face on a hard wooden pillow and the outlines of her body covered with currency ranging from cash to paper bills. We learned by inquiry that if a pilgrim or one of his relatives suffers from any ailment from headache to corns, he places a coin on the corresponding area of the Sleeping Lady and hopes thus to save a few taels on his doctor bill. Spread over a chair were the lady's clothes, includ-

CHANG MUST SOON GET OUT OF CHIHLI OR FIGHT, BELIEF

Peking Tries To Interpret Lull In Situation

Mukden Warlord Accused Of Conniving With Tokio

(Reuter Pacific Service)

Peking, April 25.—A further lull in the situation can be observed today but whether it is a precursor of the threatened storm or an indication of dawning discretion on the part of General Chang Tso-lin, there is no means of judging.

General Wu Pei-fu is undoubtedly ready to take the field and General Chang Tso-lin must quickly decide either to recall his troops from Chihli or fight. The best that can be said is that the period of slander and intimidation must soon end.

BY JOSEF W. HALL
Staff Correspondent the China Press

Paotingfu, April 25.—The public explanations of their respective positions by the rival military chieftains has rather strengthened Wu Pei-fu's cause. Wu refutes Chang's statement regarding the necessity for protecting the prospective Tientsin conference by pointing out that the latter's invasion of friendly territory constitutes a direct, aggressive act, and that the disturbance he has created thereby has reached a point the people will no longer tolerate.

It is believed now that Chang Tso-lin would accept any "face saving" scheme that would get him out of the blind alley into which he has been led, but it is not thought here that Wu Pei-fu will permit the Fengtien warlord to extricate himself without a fight, and that he will precipitate one as soon as his military dispositions are completed. He will insist that Chang withdraw completely behind the great wall, terms which Chang certainly will not accept without a fight.

Wu's greatest weakness is his lack of funds and supplies, the railway disruption having robbed him of his greatest source of revenue, and the delay may militate against him.

General Wu has intelligence that the Southern government has gone to pieces.

BY JOSEF W. HALL
Staff Correspondent the China Press

Paotingfu, April 25.—Interviews with the Chihli commanders reveal that they are convinced that mediation in the present trouble is futile.

General Wu Pei-fu has halted communications on the Peking-Hankow railway between Paotingfu and Peking, preparatory to active operations northward into Shantung. This is to be the first field campaign, with small forces only deployed along the Hankow-Peking line, Gen. Wu's main forces are being sent by way of the Belgian railway and to a greater degree overland by way of the newly built Red Cross roads toward Shantung. It is believed that he plans a sudden onslaught toward Tientsin, with the purpose of cutting the communications of the Fengtien troops.

Tsao Kun's Chief of Staff, General Hsiung Yun-cheng, told me that the Chihli party regards Sun Yat-sen's, their own and Chang Tso-lin's factions respectively as the military exponents of radical, conservative and reactionary thought in China, the last of which must be eliminated before a union of the two former can be made possible.

Asked how long the present condition of neither peace nor war would continue, he pledged that not only this, but all military phases of the anti-reactionary campaign would be over in a month. Another year will be required, he said, to bring about reconstruction, following which the provincial leaders, whom Wu Pei-fu now realises must be substituted for the previously advocated "People's National Assembly," will be convoked to establish some sort of a parliament, institute an educational system, plan disbandment of the army, effect industrial reforms, and provide the safeguards for commerce required by foreign capital.

He declared that a final crushing of the Anfuites, and expulsion of the Fengtien forces is the first step of this whole ambitious program, which has been formulated by Generals Wu's and Tsao Kun's junior commanders, whom I find very progressive.

The old super-Tuchun heartily supports the project of leaving the ultimate disposal of the army in the hands of the young com-

Inanders, keeping himself in retirement. His prestige is good here, though his brothers have been discredited.

General Hsiung says the clash has been precipitated by Chang's designs upon Shantung, which was planned with the purpose of exploitation jointly with the Japanese. He declared that this was the real motive behind the sending of Fengtien troops this side of the great wall.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, April 24.—The telegram addressed on April 20 by Chang Tso-lin to General Pao Kuei-ching, Minister of War, is couched in the following terms:

"As there were various groundless rumors with regard to the entry into Chihli of the Fengtien troops, I (Chang Tso-lin) intended at first to withdraw all the Fengtien troops from Chihli, but Wang Cheng-pin and Tsao Jui came to Mukden and begged me to give up my idea above mentioned. Afterwards I despatched additional Fengtien forces to Chihli after consultation with Tsao Jui, and then I paid a visit to Tientsin, where I had an interview with Tsao Jui, when it was decided to bring about the reunification of the whole country.

"With this end in view, I commenced to transport more Fengtien forces to Chihli and lo! the Chihli troops suddenly began to make warlike preparations, showing their offensive tendency. Furthermore, in the telegram recently communicated by Wu Pei-fu to the Provincial Assembly of Chihli, he bitterly abused me. It is not difficult to infer that the severe criticisms of various descriptions levelled at me that I was pro-Japanese or I had a connection with the movement for the restoration of the Manchu Dynasty have all originated with Wu Pei-fu.

"Who is the man responsible for taking the lead in opening hostilities? Taken from the geographical point of view, Fengtien and Chihli have the relation of interdependence, and Tsao Kun is my old friend. Though Wu Pei-fu's abuses against me are not worthy of notice, I find it difficult to comprehend Tsao Kun's real intention that when he is fully aware of the rudeness committed by his subordinate, Wu Pei-fu, he is still blindly following Wu Pei-fu. The object of my mobilising Fengtien troops to Chihli has been already reported, and so I have no need to reiterate it here. I will announce this much, however, that unless Wu Pei-fu challenges me to fight, I will never open hostilities. I have decided to stop for the present the transportation of these troops, which are now under preparations for mobilisation and to call a halt to those troops which have already entered Chihli. You, Pao Kuei-ching, are requested to notify Wang Shih-chen and others that my cardinal object is to effect peace and unification of this country without any personal ambition whatever."

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanking, April 25.—It has been learned on good authority that the tuchuns of Kiangsu, Chekiang, Anhui and Shantung have agreed to preserve neutrality in their provinces and to resist the entrance of Mukden troops into this area.

Despite this assurance, military activities are being feverishly carried on in this military zone and troops are hurriedly recruited, every idle man being pressed into service.

Peking, April 25.—Chang Tso-lin has wired President Hsu Shih-chang that he will leave Mukden today and will come direct to Peking for a conference with the president.

CHANG HAS AEROS

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, April 25.—Fengtien troops, with a number of aeroplanes, are within the shadows of the Great Wall. Troop trains have brought 120 carloads of fighting men.

The Chinese press insists on printing stories daily that the arrival of the troops means a defence program for the Legation Quarter. Today's Chinese press says that there are 10,000 foreign troops held in the Legations ready for action.

The Legations are giving out no information but it was learned from reliable sources today that foreign interests will assure systems of communication between Tientsin and Peking.

Peking, April 25.—Fengtien troops have occupied Machang and Tangkuanghu. There has been some fighting at Changhsintien.

Temporary hospitals have been established at Weihei and Changtefu.

Peking, April 25.—The Foreign Legations have been assured by Chang Tso-lin that the trains on the Peking-Mukden line will not be held up.

Peking, April 25.—Chihli troops are making it impossible to repair the seventeen-mile rail break on the Machang-Tsinghsien section.

Tientsin, April 25.—The Chinese General Chamber of Commerce has telegraphed to both Wu Pei-fu and Chang Tso-lin asserting that a neutral zone must be maintained about Tientsin. They stipulate that the distance shall be 40 li in all directions.

SERVICE NOT CRIPPLED

Though no notice of the strike was given to the postal authorities and the four hundred carriers quit without warning, no serious interruption to the service has been occasioned beyond the halting of street deliveries. The entire office staff of the main station on Szechuen and Peking Roads was obliged to work all night Monday, but all outgoing consignments of mail were handled and were dispatched on schedule on outgoing steamers. The dispatch of further consignments continued through the day yesterday and members of the office staff gave every effort to the task of filling the places of the strikers.

In accordance with published notices mail is being delivered to all the sub-stations throughout the city in the usual manner and the public generally has been notified to call at the sub-stations for mail matter that cannot be delivered by carrier. The bulk of the distribution is being done by the main station and to accommodate the public to the greatest extent this station is being kept open for delivery of mail to all who come for it until midnight.

The main sub-stations through which distribution is being made are the Nanking Road Station, No P 194 Nanking Road, the station at No. 37 Rue Montauban, that at 526-527 Carter Road, No. 273 Avenue Joffre, F 1 No. 11 Bubbling Well Road, No. 76 North Szechuen Road, No. 2501-2 Seward Road, and the Yangtszepoo station.

RUSS COMMITTEE AT CONFERENCE GIVES UP GHOST

"Soviet Proposals Unsatisfactory, Useless To Continue"

(Reuter's Service)

Genoa, April 24.—The committee dealing with Russia has adjourned, the chairman intimating that it was useless to continue. The Soviet proposals are regarded as most unsatisfactory.

The Experts, without the Russians, will hold another meeting later to discuss their attitude. Meetings with the Russians will only be resumed when the discussions have concluded.

The Transport Committee has decided that the administrations of the French Railways should initiate the summoning of an international conference of railway experts at the earliest possible opportunity.

Paris, April 24.—Messages from Genoa state that optimism prevails generally in conference circles. An important conversation between Mr. Lloyd George and M. Barthou took place on the occasion of the French delegation's luncheon to the British plenipotentiaries. It is understood that the discussion, which was most cordial, disclosed agreement between the British and French leaders on the necessity of adopting a common attitude. The decisions reached were marked by a manifest desire for French and British collaboration, which is expected to give a favorable turn to the deliberations of the conference.

(Reuter's Service)

Bar-le-Duc, April 24.—M. Poincare, addressing the Meuse Council General, said that France would only remain at Genoa on condition that she was not called upon to make concessions either to Germany or Soviet Russia.

It was indispensable that the Allies should retain control of Germany's armaments. When Germany had completely disarmed, he said, France would gladly follow suit.

He concluded by saying that whatever occurred at Genoa owing to the new situation resulting from the Russo-German Treaty, which was one of the most formidable events since the armistice and must be examined in conjunction with her Allies, France was determined to preserve everything gained under the Treaty of Versailles.

(Reuter's Service)

Genoa, April 24.—Number one Commission has resumed its labors.

The atmosphere of the Conference generally today is described as sunshine after rain. The British delegates regard the position as more satisfactory.

The results already achieved include the practical completion of the labors of the Financial and Transport Commissions, while the Economic Commission has also made good progress.

Genoa, April 24.—On the resumption of the sitting of the expert committee dealing with Russia the Soviet representatives submitted a document stating that in the event of the Powers granting adequate credits and agreeing to de jure recognition of the Soviet Government, the Soviet delegates would request a complete suppression of war debts and a moratorium in respect of interest due to creditors.

Genoa, April 24.—In a speech dealing with the broad aspects of the Conference, Lord Birkenhead warmly denounced "those who never gave the Conference a fair chance."

He was confident he said that harmonious conclusions could be obtained. On the other hand, the failure of the Conference would be one of the blackest moments since the middle ages.

CHICHERIN'S SPEECH

(Reuter News Agency)

Moscow, April 17.—The following is a summary of the speech made by Mr. Chicherin at the first session of the Genoa conference:

"The Russian delegation has come here in the interests of international peace and economic restoration. It recognises the necessity of economic co-operation if it is not going to be overburdened with unrealisable demands. Reforms of legislation, newly introduced by the Russian Government, afford efficient guarantees for co-operation with other countries. The restoration of world's economics, however, is unattainable until the world is no longer threatened by the possibility of new wars in the future. Russia is ready to contribute to the establishment of peace, as much as peace is possible in view of the present system of government in most of the states. The Russian delegation, therefore, intends to propose a general restriction on armaments, and is ready to decrease her own armed force on condition of guarantees against attacks and intervention from other states.

"Welcoming the proposition of the British Premier concerning periodical conferences, we consider it necessary to turn them into a congress of all peoples with an official participation of labor organisations. Such an all-world congress could appoint technical committees for working out a program of general economic restoration. We, as communists, cherish no illusions as to the removal of causes of war and of economic crises, but we are ready to assist all attempts for a temporary improvement of the world's economic conditions and for the limitation of possibilities of new wars. The Russian delegation declares that it is firmly decided to apply all her efforts for the success of the conference."

Won By Mail

A WAR-TIME wooing, conducted by correspondence between a Brooklyn, N. Y., girl and an American soldier at the French front, recently culminated in the marriage of Miss Rae Ward and Holman E. Winfrey, of Vallejo, California. Three years ago an appeal from three soldiers at the front, who said they had no one to write to them, was printed in a New York newspaper. Miss Ward and two other Brooklyn girls became interested. They put the three names in a hat, and each drew out a name. Miss Ward drew the name of Winfrey, who was with a California regiment. The correspondence reached a point where the soldier insisted he must have a photograph of his benefactress. Miss Ward sent one, and Winfrey responded with one of his own. It showed him a good-looking young man. The romance followed.

Peking Legation Sensation Revived By Trial In Italy

At home she waited for letters but none came. Finally she consulted Captain Pitri's family and on their advice returned on the Innsbruch, despite two cables advising her to wait a registered letter at Shanghai. She cabled back she could not wait so long

From Singapore, where she cabled Captain Pitri to meet her in Shanghai, on up the coast Signora Cioci says she met a series of attempts to dissuade her from visiting Peking. At each port of call Italian consular officials would examine her passport, and finding it in order would tell her orders had come from the Italian Minister at Peking not to let her pass.

URGED NOT TO PASS

She stated that Commander Pardo whom she met here urged her not to go to Peking as the Captain would not receive her. She said that she would go to the Minister and report what had happened in Shanghai and Hongkong and that she had only come to take the Captain back home with her. He then pleaded with her, she declares, "for the sake of the whole Italian colony" not to go to Peking. However, she took the train that same day. Her statement from this point as follows:

"I arrived in Peking on June 5 after 7 p.m. and was met at the Station by Capt. Pitri's boy, who handed me a letter in which he told me that by order of his Doctor he had gone to Shanhaikwan and if I wanted to see him I should go there. I took a room at the Grand Hotel des Wagons-Lits and asked the way to the Italian Legation, but was told that it was already too late to go to the Legation.

"The next morning I went to the Legation at 10 o'clock and was told that the Minister had not yet arrived. I told the N. C. Officer, Cospedini by name, that I wanted to see Capt. Pitri in the presence of the Minister and that if the Captain was really in Shanhaikwan, I would ask the Minister to send for him. He seemed to be very much embarrassed and said that it would be much better for me to go to Shanhaikwan and talk things over with the Captain. When I told him that I did not know the place nor the hours of the train, he said that he would take me to the Station and book a compartment for me. He came to fetch me at the Hotel a little before 8 p.m. and we went to the Station, where I found out that nothing had been reserved for me. I gave him $20.00 which was all I had on me in Mexican currency and he sent the Legation Postman to fetch me a ticket, but he never returned and the train moved out.

"There was not a single seat free on the train and I was left standing in the Restaurant Car with all the seats and even the tables taken by Chinese soldiers. The conductor came for the ticket and I spoke to him in Italian and French but he could not understand. At last a gentleman who spoke French could be found and with his aid I was able to obtain a ticket for which I paid in sterling. The gentleman had a Chinese give up his seat and asked me to sit down. After some time I was told that a berth had been vacated for me which I was very glad to take as I was then very tired.

SPENDS NIGHT IN OPEN

"When the train arrived in Shanhaikwan I saw Commander Pardo rush out of the station. I asked an Italian sailor if he knew Capt. Pitri and was told he did not. I asked him if he knew Comm. Pardo and the sailor told me that he had just left the station. I took a coolie who helped me to a Chinese hotel, where I was told that Capt. Pitri was staying at the Barracks.

"A Chinese volunteered to take me to the Barracks, where I found Capt. Pitri, Commander Pardo and Mr. Zotti in a small house. I told the Captain what I thought of his conduct and he ordered me out of the Barracks. I told him that I would wait outside for him as I wanted him to go to the Minister with me. I waited in vain for many long hours and passed the night in the open.

"I left Shanhaikwan on the morning of the 9th and was back in Peking at about 8:30 p.m. I returned to my room at the Wagons-Lits and a little later the N. C. Office Cospedini called and told me that he had been waiting at the station for a long time and had missed my arrival. He asked me if I was going to see the Minister next morning and I told him that I considered the whole lot of them a lot of traitors and therefore I would not tell any body what I was going to do, whereupon he left again.

TELLS OF ATTACK

"A little after 10 o'clock somebody knocked at my door repeatedly and at my enquiry said it was a friend who wanted to speak to me. I answered that I had no friends and that there must be a mistake in the number of the door. The person outside then said that she was the wife of the Italian Minister, Marquise Durazzo. I said I was sorry but as I had already retired for the night I was not in a position to receive her. But she was most insistent and after having put on a traveling coat, I opened the door.

"A very long conversation ensued in which naturally the Captain was mentioned. I told her that I would see the Minister, whereupon she said that the Minister know all about it and that the Minister, Commander Pardo and Capt. Pitri knew that she was actually with me. As we talked rather loudly a lady, who was staying in a room nearby, came to the door and requested us not to make so much noise. The Marquise spoke to the lady through the half opened door and I noticed that she locked the door when she finished with the lady. She then asked me where I kept the Captain's correspondence and I told her in the wardrobe. She asked me to let her see it and I consented to show her something. She said that a lot of people were talking about her and that I was one of those who believed such talk. I told her that I only believed things I could see with my own eyes.

"I then went to the wardrobe where all the letters were kept in a small handbag, and I had hardly touched the bag, which was at the bottom of the wardrobe, when I received a number of heavy blows on my head. I did not know where the blows came from till I turned my head and saw the Marquise standing behind me, hitting me all the time with something black and heavy and holding me by the neck with one hand. I shouted:

"'Marquise, if you want the letters you can have them.' She then said something which I will only tell the Court in Ancona.

BOTH WRISTS CUT

"I shouted for help and fainted, but came back to my senses when she cut my right wrist first and then the left. As I was already half dead I could not very well see the weapon she used, I could only see something bright and shiny. I also saw her passing with the small bag in her hands and thought that she had taken it away with her, but found out a few days later that she had left it on the chest of drawers at the other end of the room. I noticed how she turned off the electric light prior to unlocking the door and after she had made sure that nobody was in the corridor outside, she left hurriedly.

"I gathered all my strength and managed to open the door and shout: 'Boy! Boy!' and then I fell in the corridor outside my room. I do not know how long I was lying there till I was found by the manager of the Hotel and carried to a nearby bathroom, where I was bandaged up by Dr. Chambers and the manager and later on sent to the Rockefeller Hospital. What then happened can be seen from the doctor's certificate.

VISITED IN HOSPITAL

"The first person who came to see me in the Hospital was the Italian Consul, Count Nani de Mocenigo, who came to see me on June 10, at 4 p.m. He requested me to tell him everything and I noticed that he did not take any notes. I had been given the holy sacraments two hours before the Consul arrived as the doctor then had little hope of saving my life.

"The next day at about 10 a.m. Dr. Di Guira came to see me, saying that he had brought with him a person dear to me. I said: Who is it? Alfredo? (Capt. Pitri). He then said: 'I will ask him to come in but you must be very quiet, otherwise the doctor will send us away.'

CONFESSION OF "SUICIDE"

"They both then knelt down by the bedside and implored my mercy on the Marquise, Dr. Di Giura asking me to be merciful to the children (Durazzo's) and the

SIR JOHN JORDAN SKEPTICAL ABOUT OPIUM REPORTS

Production 25 Percent Of 1907 Output, He Declares

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, April 25.—Sir John Jordan in the course of an interview yesterday described the manner in which the Chinese Government from 1907 to 1917 had gradually closed down cultivation of poppy as the greatest reforms the world had ever seen but unfortunately there had been a relapse. He wished that the Chinese Government had acknowledged the truth that there had been a recrudescence of poppy growing which they were unable to suppress owing to the disorganised state of the country. This was one of the phases of China's evolution. The world must be patient with her. Sir John Jordan pointed out that practically all the country was in the hands of military rulers who usurped all authority. Very large quantities of morphia were sent to the Far East and there had been immense smuggling of foreign opium. If the Opium Commission did not rise to the level of its opportunities, China, which hitherto had not manufactured morphia, would manufacture it not only for her own consumption but for the markets of the world.

Geneva, April 24.—The Opium Commission has concluded consideration of the various governments' replies to the questionnaire sent out by the League of Nations on opium traffic and production in the Far East.

It passed a resolution concerning the fresh extension of poppy growing in China and the measures to be suggested to the Chinese Government.

The Japanese delegate intimated his readiness to accept a committee of representatives of the League of Nations to open an enquiry into the introduction of morphia into China.

Geneva, April 24.—When interviewed with regard to the statement of Mr. Chu Chao-Hsin, the Chinese representative on the Opium Commission of the League of Nations, that while reports of the Chinese Government Commissioners from twelve provinces or parts of provinces confirmed the fact that the poppy was again being cultivated to some extent, but that strict orders had been given for the destruction of the crops when found, Sir John Jordan declared that the reports were futile and omitted the most important provinces.

He gave evidence that in February last opium in some quarters was being cultivated over a greater area than for many years, and that it was estimated that the present production was 25 or 30 percent of the production of 1907.

He described the policy of the Indian Government in continuing to send opium to Hongkong and elsewhere as very unsatisfactory. The Chinese, he said, argued that if India and other countries were supplying Chinese abroad with opium why should they not grow it for Chinese at home.

Sir John Jordan went on to say that the British communities in the East had expressed the opinion that the prestige of the British was being very seriously injured by this action.

LONGJAIL TERMS ARE IMPOSED IN ARSON CASE

Two Pawnshop Employes Sentenced To Three Years

Lengthy prison terms were served out yesterday at the Mixed Court in the case of three pawnshop employes convicted of arson.

The men were accused of setting fire to a pawnshop at 1761-62 Sinza Road during the early morning hours of March 11 last, the day on which the proprietor of the place was to turn it over to another Chinese who had just purchased it. Information was given by an apprentice who was in the building at the time it was fired and heard the others talking over their act. The court imposed sentences of three years' imprisonment upon two of the accused and of one year, suspended sentence, upon the third, an apprentice.

Oil Shortage Is Vigorously Denied

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 25.—The startling statement made by Mr. Geoffrey Drage in a recent letter to the Times, to the effect that the Government had not at present enough oil to enable it to send a battle-fleet to Singapore or Hongkong and that in the event of an attack at present "Hongkong and Singapore must fall at once," is received with incredulity by a well-informed correspondent of the Times, who declares that the Admiralty can rely on the new oil-fields of Sarawak amply to provide any naval demands at a moment's notice. Thanks to the patriotic foresight of the late Rajah of Sarawak, the correspondent states, arrangements have been made to assure an adequate supply of oil always being at the disposal of the Navy at Singapore.

STRIKE TIES UP ALL ACTIVITIES IN DUBLIN FOR DAY

Stoppage Of Work May Be Continued—26 Counties Idle

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 25.—Dublin yesterday was silent and village-like in consequence of the strike which passed off according to the prearranged program. The Free State was cut off from the outside world and experienced a complete cessation of normal activities, including trains, trams, steamers, telegraphs and telephones, while shops, hotels, theaters and cinemas were closed.

Nevertheless, beyond the posting of a bogus notice announcing the establishmest of an Irish Workers Republic, the day passed quietly. No disturbances of any description have been reported up to the present. The general stoppage may possibly be continued.

(China Press Service)

London, April 24.—The Irish Free State is cut off from the world and even from Ulster as a result of the twenty-four hour general strike of labor in protest to militarism.

Telegraph and telephones are silent. All means of transportation apparently are halted.

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 24.—Two persons were killed and eight were wounded in Belfast during the week-end, including a woman who was killed by a bomb which exploded at the door of a chapel in the midst of a number of churchgoers.

A man was latter shot dead in his house in reprisal for the murder of the woman.

London, April 24.—In accordance with the proclamation calling for a twenty-four hours general strike, business was suspended in twenty-six counties of Ireland today, but was carried on in Ulster.

There, however, it was hampered by the cessation of communications with the Free State.

The isolation of Ireland as regarding the United Kingdom is complete.

Soviet Army To Be Educational, Trotsky Declares

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, April 17.—The Chairman of the War Council, Trotsky writing in the Pravda says that the Soviet army's fourth year was marked by retrenchment and reorganisation; the fifth year shall be devoted to education. A vigorous campaign is being conducted in the army against political backwardness and superstition, as well as against routine and superficiality in military training. This great task is much facilitated by the ever-growing interest in the army noticeable among the toiling masses.

The Commander - in - Chief, Kamenev, in the Izvestia reviewing the army's splendid record, says that neither the atmosphere of peace-time nor the difficult economic situation and climatic severity have discouraged the valiant Soviet army, diligently training to keep fit for all eventualities.

Brussilov, in the Izvestia reviewing the gigantic historical task of forming the new army after the total collapse of the old, says that the formation of the Soviet army will forever remain the greatest of the achievements of the Revolution. The army must be maintained efficient and strong to guarantee unhindered peaceful development against foreign intervention.

The noted ex-Wrangelite, General Slashchev, praises the valiant Soviet army born in struggles, which is now trained and educated under peaceful conditions, thus becoming a formidable defender of the Soviet Federation against all foreign invasion. The glorious past augurs success for the Soviet army in the great task of self-education.

Pearl Poachers In Mexico

Pearl poaching is a new industry with the coastal waters of the Gulf of California for its scene of operations. The pearl fishing monopoly which existed in the Pacific waters of Mexico for many years during the regime of President Porfirio Diaz was done away with during the administration of the late President Venustiano Carranza. This left the pearling grounds open to many independent companies and individuals. Japanese interests were quick to obtain most of the choice breeding grounds of the bivalves in which the pearls are found.

It is chiefly the Japanese who now complain that raids are made almost nightly upon their pearl fishing possessions by fast moving motor boats. It is stated that these boats are evidently well equipped for poaching. They run without showing lights and carry expert divers. It is asserted that pearls to the value of many thousands of dollars have been taken from the privately owned holdings by the raiding parties. The Mexican government recently ordered two coast guard boats to those waters and they are now on constant patrol duty.

Polo Club In Its Annual Meeting Shows Stronger Interest In The Sport

More Members Enrolled Now Than Ever; Successful Year Reviewed

A considerable growth in membership and an increased activity in the field over a longer playing period were the noteworthy points brought out at the 24th annual general meeting of the Shanghai Polo Club held at the Shanghai Race Club last evening.

The membership during the past year increased from 59 to 74 playing members and from 109 to 120 non playing members. Polo was played on the club's field last year on 58 regular days, with a greater number of active players than ever before participating in the games.

The committee report for the year recalled Shanghai's win over Hongkong in the Southern port for the Keswick Challenge Cup, and the keen interest displayed here in the annual tournament for the Bydand Challenge Cup and for the Dallas Cups. It was promised also that Hongkong would challenge Shanghai for a return match for the Keswick trophy this summer, the game, as per conditions, to be played here.

Aside from the consideration of accounts which showed a sizeable balance on the credit side, the most important routine business transacted was the election of the new committee, which resulted as follows:

Dr. C. N. Davis, Messrs. R. I. Fearon, H. G. Robinson, J. A. Hayes, E. H. McMichael, B. D. F. Beith. The new committee will select its own chairman to succeed Mr. Fearon, who headed last year's committee, and Honorary Secretary and Treasurer J. A. Hayes who wishes to be relieved from the office.

SAYS 'BUGS' Baer:

OYSTERS ON THE WHOLE SHELL

That's Way They Eat Them In The Good Old Town Of Scranton

BY "BUGS" BAER

Amooza, Oregon, wants to be listed in the tough town tournament. The mayor of that town is so mean that he goes around smacking blind beggars' tin cups with a sledge hammer.

Gruff, Dakota, is also some nimble collection of bad necks. Gruff is a wide place in the road near an important puddle in a ditch. The famous puddle jumpers of Dakota comes from this burg.

Out in Dakota, burg is short for burglar. They abbreviate everything out there. Especially lives. The puddle jumpers make their living jumping puddles. They get 10 cents for little puddles and pro rata for increased influence. It takes a lifetime of experience to become an expert puddle leaper, but Gruff claims the champion puddle-hopping banner.

Gruff is in North Dakota and the towns get tougher as you travel toward the setting ocean. Maniacs must wear dimmers on their spectacles within the city limits. The Board of Aldermen considers life sentence a victory.

The chief of police is married. His wife eats her mashed potatoes with a revolver. He gave her a fried bulldog for their tenth wedding anniversary. Nice people.

When they get to shooting each other in Gruff it's fun in Summer and a frolic in Winter.

Aggola, Maine, aint so far back in the book of mean cities. They put lightning rods on pancakes up there.

Mandibber, Florida, is the place where they put handles on crocodiles and use 'em for travelling bags. The croc walks alongside and save Pullman porter tips. When you want a clean collar you tickle the crockigater on the nose and he opens his mouth. Reach in and grab your collar.

Spring is here.

Tennis Semi-Finals Go To Chinese

Hongkong, April 19.—The first semi-final in the Open Doubles Championship on the Hongkong Cricket Club ground yesterday afternoon was a disappointing affair. Ng Sze-kwong and W. Lock Wei were opposed by F. A. Redmond and G. R. Sayer. Neither pair played up to their usual form and there was very little to enthuse over during the three-quarters of an hour play was in progress. As was generally anticipated the Chinese couple won fairly comfortably, the final score being 6-4, 6-2, 6-4 in their favor. Now and again Ng showed glimpses of what he is really capable of and Redmond drove and placed well on occasion, but the other two were right off their game.

American School Nine Meets Shanghai Rookies In Practice Game Today

Play Commences At 5 p.m.; Boys Expect To Show Well

The American School boys will take the big Shanghai baseball squad on this afternoon at the Race Course ball lot in a seven inning practice game. It will be the school's first appearance on the diamond this season, and Shanghai's second test. The school is reported as having a very promising lot of material this year, which under the director of Coach J. O. Van Hook has developed into a really good nine.

The game for Shanghai will be in the nature of another test of rookies, as was the scrimmage last Saturday with the men of the cruiser Albany. It is expected to start with a full lineup of young players, and to change them out for other new comers until every man in uniform has had his chance.

The school has a squad of a dozen or more players. Hagar will probably pitch and R. W. and C. C. Squires will change off at catching. Brewster will cover the initial sack, Smith will play at second, Chase will be at third and Wiens will handle the hot corner. In the outfield Keyes, Yates, MacDonald, Shipley and Lockwood will take their turns.

For Shanghai it is likely that Maloney will start in the box. With Wynn temporarily laid up and Scott not yet limbered up, the hurling job must fall to Mal and to Church, the youngster who threw a few innings last Saturday. Hopkins also may try his wing while Woods covers first base for him.

The placing of other men for Shanghai will be simple. Every man showing for the game will have his chance for a few innings at any particular place he thinks suits him best. Captain Hills is keen to have the full squad out, and he promises to use every man that shows.

The game commences at 5 p.m.

Peking Legation Sensation Revived By Trial In Italy

Captain's family, whom I loved. The same thing was repeated by the Captain. I asked what they wanted me to do and they said that I should make a declaration, saying that I had tried to commit suicide.

"I said: 'I never will to save the friend of Captain Pitri.' They both insisted, the Captain crying like a child and saying that he would take me back to Italy and marry me as soon as possible. The doctor saying that I had everything favorable in my hands I answered that I would ask the Consul if he wanted me to do it—if not, I would not do it. They said that they would come back again for the answer after I had seen the Consul.

AGREES TO CONFESSION

"Soon after that the Consul arrived with the Chancellor and I told the Consul that I had to speak to him in private, whereupon the Chancellor left the room. I told him what Dr. di Giura and the Captain asked me to do and said: 'If you want me to do it, I will oblige them.' The Consul then told me that I could save the Captain and still get justice from the others. He left with the promise to request the Captain to come and get the answer, and said that he would come back again in the afternoon. Nobody came and at 7:30 p.m. I asked the nurse to ring up the Italian Legation and ask the Consul to come round.

"After some time Padre Leonetti arrived asking if I had sent for him. I told him that I had sent for the Consul and I told him everything they asked me to do in the morning and said that I wanted justice and no more nonsense. I then made to Padre Leonetti the same declaration I had in the first instance made to the Consul and when we were talking together the Consul arrived. I repeated to him that I wanted justice and nothing else. He then said: 'Shall I call the witnesses for your deposition?' I said: 'Yes, at once, everybody has to know the truth.' He left for a moment and came back again with the Captain and a gentleman I did not know. When I saw the Captain I asked the Consul: 'Are these the witnesses you called?' I then asked the Captain why he had not come back in the morning, whereupon he said that the Consul had not wanted him to come. I asked who the other gentleman was and the Captain said it was the Italian Minister.

QUESTIONED BY MINISTER

"The Consul then requested me to tell the Minister all about the crime. I started and after sometime the Minister interrupted me, asking if I had insulted his wife in the course of our interview on the 9th. I told him no, that we talked together for a long time, sometimes perhaps a little loud, but never angry. When I finished with the story, he told me that he could not believe it, as he had studied his wife for the last 12 years. I said: 'Well if you do not believe me, there are several witnesses who saw and heard everything which was confirmed by the Consul. The Minister then asked me what the Captain had promised me in the morning for the other declaration. I said: 'Please ask him yourself.' The Captain then said: 'I maintain my promise if she confirms the declaration she made to me this morning.' I asked: 'What do you mean—my declaration of this morning? You know very well that I have never made any declaration to you.'

"He then said: 'You told me this morning, that when the Marquise came to see you on the 9th you told her that as you could not see the Captain any more you would kill yourself and you started to run against the bedstead, the table and everything else with your head, and you cut your wrists with a piece of glass from a broken bottle.'

ORDERS PITRI OUT

"I then sat up in my bed and told the Captain in proper language what I thought of all his villainy and ordered him out of the room. He left the room and I told the Minister all that Doctor di Giura and the Captain has requested me to do in the morning. The Minister called Pitri in again who again repeated what he had said before, and I again requested him in the same language to get out of my sight. The Minister then said: 'Pitri vuole che si dice cosi.' To which I said: 'Va bene, if it is necessary to say so, I will say it for the benefit of the children, the Minister, the Captain's family, and himself but I have not said it before.'

"The Minister then addressed the Captain: 'As you have been with this lady for eight years, will you stay with her till the end of your life?' The Captain said 'Yes.' The Minister then said: 'You know very well that she cannot be married to you.' He replied that he had found out only this morning that I was already married. I said: 'That is not true because I told Commander Pardo in Shanghaiwan and he must have told you.'

"Pitri repeated that he only learned of it this morning. The Minister then asked if the Captain's family approved of the union, to which he replied that his family liked me very much. The Minister then asked the Captain if he would like to take me home. He said: 'Yes, as soon as she is able to travel.' The Minister then said: 'Will you stay with her from now and not leave her again?' and the Captain replied in the affirmative. The Minister, the Consul and Padre Leonetti then left, the Minister saying: 'We will see each other again.'

FURTHER INTERCESSIONS

"The next day, June 12, Madame de Luca came to see me in the afternoon; she knew me from the first journey I made to Peking, as we had travelled on the same boat. She talked to me about the crime and I told her how everything happened. She said that she already knew but that she did not want to know. She then asked me the same thing that Dr. di Giura and Capt. Pitri had asked me to do the previous day. I told her that what I had to say was already said, whereupon she replied that I had treated the Captain in such a way in front of the Minister that the latter did no believe that I would make the statement. She then offered to call the Consul and to return with him.

"The Consul arrived a little later with the Chancellor but without Madame de Luca. He told me that he had come to take down my declaration. I told him to put down the same thing that the Captain had given him already, as I did not want to say something different. The Consul then told me that he did not want to do this, but I insisted that I would not do it in a different way. The Consul left the room for a moment to consult the Captain outside and when he came back he repeated the words of the Captain's declaration made in the Minister's presence. Everything was put in writing and signed by two witnesses. They then left the Hospital.

"Then next day the Doctor objected to the continual presence of Captain Pitri in the room and the Captain made arrangements to go to his house in the legation for the night. He left me at about 8:30 p.m. but before he left he wrote the true declaration."

Signora Cioci said that when Captain Pitri left her she knew he was going to commit suicide. If she had been able to reach a telephone, she said, or to make someone at the hospital understand her—she speaks no English—she would have informed the Legation of his intent.

PITRI'S LAST WORD

But before the Captain left he left with her the following statement, a photographic copy of which, in Italian, was furnished to the press:

Peking, June 13, 1921.

Upon my word of honor as an officer and on the honor of my family, I swear that the statement made by Madame Maria Cioci in the second instance was made only at my request, because the true circumstances as happened in fact and which brought to her being wounded, were those declared by her in her first statement to the Italian Consul of Tientsin, to the Minister, to Padre Leonetti and to all those who heard her before her latter statement, which was made only out of her love for me.

(Signed) ALFREDO PITRI.

The report of Dr. Adnair S. Taylor, of Peking Medical College, described in detail Signora Cioci's wounds. Some 76 sutures were required for the scalp wounds. In conclusion the report states:

"From the appearance of the wounds and their location and extent, in my opinion it is certain that they were not self-inflicted. The day after the injury, I asked the patient to write her name. This she was unable to do with her left hand. The fact that the right hand of the patient was entirely incapacitated by the injuries proves to my mind that they were not self-inflicted."

America Exports Rice To Japanese

America is sending rice to Japan. Although it is not generally realised the United States is in the position of furnishing an oriental country with a fundamental food necessity, and this relationship may modify very profoundly the attitude of Japan toward California and its Japanese problem, declared James F. Abbott, United States Commercial Attache in Tokio.

The population of Japan is about 60,000,000, Mr. Abbott said, and she consumes approximately 350,000,000 bushels of rice a year. The domestic production of rice averages about 25,000,000 bushels less than the yearly consumption. The Japanese product, however, is peculiarly adapted to Japanese needs and taste, while the rice imported from Indo-China or Siam is bought and consumed only under protest, although it sells at about one-third the domestic price.

"The rice-growing and consuming peoples live in one section of the world, about which you could build an almost continuous fence enclosing all," Mr. Abott said. "The Japanese contribute 5 percent and consume 10 percent of the total rice produced. With the tendency toward industrialisation of the peoples of the Far East a larger burden is being thrown upon the producers of food supplies, owing to concentration in factory work. The decrease in the available rice is, therefore, progressive."

There are two ways out of this situation, Mr. Abbott explained. Some additional source of rice must be provided or the users of rice must be taught to consume wheat, which is a difficult task. In 1912 the United States Department of Agriculture established an experimental station in the Sacramento Valley of California. In an adobe soil, fitted for nothing else, rice was grown until it has become a product of importance.

California-grown rice is a Japanese seed rice, Mr. Abbott said, and practically the only Japanese rice produced outside of Japan. It is grown under such improved conditions for care and harvesting, that it can be set down in Yokohama at a profit.

"Production in Japan is at a great expenditure of human effort wholly out of proportion with the accomplishment," Mr. Abbot went on. "As a result of the war there has been a rise in the cost of rice and labor. The increase in the commodity price was from $7.50 for a unit of five bushels to $22.50, amounting to about 7 cents a pound. The production price is extremely close to the selling price, and there appears to be little prospect of an adjustment downward in either.

"Japanese methods requiring expenditure of much labor do not offer much prospect of being supplanted. The efficient methods in California put the American product within reach of the Japanese, and the output is going to Japan steadily. Thus the United States is in the somewhat reversed position of furnishing an oriental country with a necessary part of its fundamental food necessity. This may very well modify the political attitude of Japan toward the California problem. It is, therefore, for the purpose of studying the conditions of rice production in the Far East that I am returning to Tokio by way of Australia, Indo-China and Siam."

LAWYER-PRINTER ON WRONG END OF 21 LAW SUITS

Judgments Totaling $40,000 Against Russian In Mixed Court

Judgment in 21 lawsuits for amounts totaling in the neighborhood of $40,000 were given against Mr. N. P. Dukelsky, Russian attorney who attempted to combine the professions of law and newspaper publishing.

The defendant was owner of the Russian Printing and Publishing Office, 14 Seward Road, and the conglomeration of law and printing, involving the shifting back and forth of finances caused his undoing and resulted in the suits for varying amounts for wages, taxes, supplies and money due an estate.

The Revenue Office, S. M. C. secured judgment from Russian Consular Assessor Ivanov and Magistrate Tsang, who heard all the cases, for $147 for watchman's fees, and Tls. 94.50 for the general rate. Mr. A. Carpi was awarded $2,000 on a business transaction. Six Russian employees of the printing house were awarded $2,881.41 and Theodar Zaviantzeff and twelve other Russian employees were awarded $287.50 for unpaid wages.

Mr. K. Ivanovitch was given $2,630, and the Russo-Asiatic Bank was awarded $4,166.68 on an overdraft made by Mr. Dukelsky. Justus Ed. Ackermann was awarded $3,683.25 for salary as business manager of the printing house, and the Liquidation Committee of the printing office $1,050 due them Kiang Hong-san was given $164.05 for binding 30,000 calendars, and A. ## Accountant Sued In Mixed Court Claims Spanish Protection

Employe Of Gold Shop Accused Of Tls. 17,000 Embezzlement

The embezzlement of Tls. 17,000 in gold bullion from the Tai Hang Yuen gold shop was charged to a Chinese accountant named Tsang Mai-hing who appeared before Assessor Tenny and Magistrate Kwan in the Mixed Court yesterday.

Mr. W. S. Fleming, appearing for the complainants, asked that heavy security be ordered. Mr. L. K. Kentwell, who appeared for the defendant, declared that his client had claimed registry at the Spanish Consulate and he asked a remand in order to make inquiry into the matter.

Mr. Fleming replied that the embezzlement occurred during two or three months preceding defendant's registry at the Spanish Consulate and the accountant, when placed in the witness box, stated that he registered on the 13th of the eleventh moon of last year and then absconded. But he had been born in Manila, he said, and claimed Spanish citizenship on the basis of that fact. Mr. Fleming said further that the accused had confessed his peculations to the police and had written letters admitting it to the complainant. Since the crime was committed before the date of the man's registration, counsel held that the Mixed Court had jurisdiction over the case.

The court ordered the case remanded, the defendant to be released on Tls. 17,000 shop security and immediate notice to be given the Assessor and Magistrate if any word is received from the Spanish Consular authorities.

WHEN A MILLIONAIRE MARRIES AN ACTRESS—
THERE IS usually one of two results—a divorce within a year, or a life of bitter quarrels, suspicion and disillusion, for the love of money and the love of admiration are poor foundations on which to build even a "Modern" marriage.
"The Furnace" is the story of such a marriage, and the "Furnace" was the hell fire which the souls of these envied and yet unhappy people were compelled to pass before the dross of convention, jealousy and misunderstanding had been burned away.
"The Furnace" is one of the most tremendous presentations of this question yet conceived on the screen.

CHINESE WOMAN FOUND MURDERED IN WEST DISTRICT

An inquest was held yesterday over the body of a Chinese forewoman employed in the China-Japan Cotton Spinning Company's mill who was evidently murdered in the country off Connaught Road, near Kweichow Road, on Monday.

There were eight wounds on the body, evidently inflicted with a large knife or chopper and it is believed that robbery was the motive. The woman, who was 24 years of age, was last seen alive by a companion with whom she was walking to the mill Monday morning. She left the companion stating that she had to make some purchases and started to walk down Jessfield Road.

A verdict was returned to the effect that the woman met her death at the hands of some person or persons at present unknown.

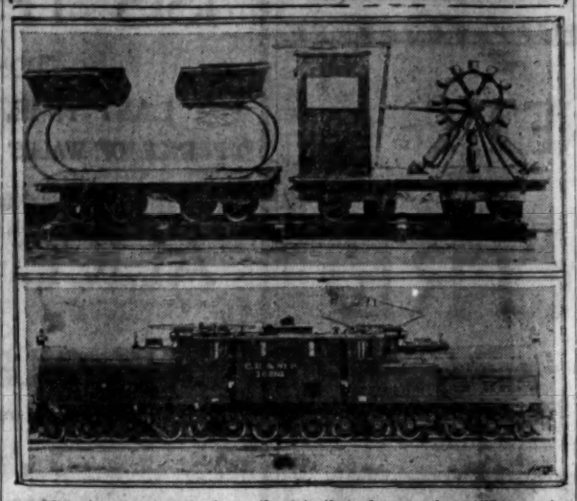
Oldest And Newest In Electric Locomotives



THE above photos show the first and the latest in electric locomotives. On top is a photo of the earliest type of successfully operated electric engine in the world. It was built by Moses G. Farmer, of Vermont, in 1847 and was ten feet long. It established its claims to the fathership of electric traction by antedating German claims for similar honors by thirty years. The lower photo shows the modern electric locomotive, the largest in the world and built seventy-five years later than the machine shown in the upper photo. This big engine hauls long trains over the Western mountains at a seventy-mile-an-hour clip. It is seventy-six feet long and weighs 260 tons.

UNINSCRIBED MONUMENT

One goes past the Uninscribed Monument, a great monolith of unknown history which bears only the character "Ti," or God, to the little Temple of the Pearly Emperor that is on the only original, honest-to-goodness and guaranteed summit of Taishan. In the middle of the courtyard an octagonal space bound by a stone railing encloses a mass of boulders that lie on the tipmost peak. Inside the small temple sits the greatest anti-climax of all—the dusty, neglected Pearly Emperor, who glowers through the hanging beads on his headdress at the "koule" held clenched in his hand.

The Divine Emperor who rode the clouds, who received the thanks of the earthly Emperors for the success of their dynasties, who sped departing armies off to war, and who served as the mediator of the one Great Spirit is as neglected as the gods of Baalbec. There are a few coppers spread on the altar, and a shy youthful priest shows the place where the old Emperors buried their jade tablets, otherwise there is no evidence that the gentleman on the altar ever counted for more than a row of peanut shells. The noise from the Lady Temple ascends like a hum of giant bumble bees, but the Pearly Emperor continues to scowl at his koule, determined at least not to let his too popular daughter know just how he feels about being relegated to the family chimney-corner without even a pipe or a pair of carpet slippers to take out the sting.

WHERE EMPERORS WORSHIP

On another summit, which in spite of all guarantees looks higher than the one authenticated, a stone monument marks the place where for more than three thousand years Emperors came from time to time to worship the one God under the open sky. Between the two summits is a ruined pavilion where Chien Lung was supposed to have stood and beyond it the red wall built in the Ming Dynasty to fence off Suicide Cliff. Large white characters still inform the public that committing suicide at this spot is prohibited, but a breach has been made in the wall and the prohibition is about as effective as another prohibition of a different type. In America, such a cliff would be known as Lovers' Leap, with a tale of a despairing Indian maid attached. In China, where suicides for love are as rare as singing crocuses, it implies death as a vicarious sacrifice to save another's life or to avenge an irreparable loss of face.

It is by the monument of the second summit that one realises the strange evolution of Taishan. In the beginning, the adoration of the mountain was undoubtedly simple nature worship. Farmers prayed to the mountain because it controlled the rainfall and the floods, because it seemed to have in its power the success or failure of their crops. Later it came to typify eternal peace, the attribute of permanence in a changing world, a Godhead that looked down with eyes of calm on a restless universe.

Gradually there developed the rudiments of a monotheistic religion and the mountain naturally became the place for the highest rites of the worship. Later imperial piety created a Heavenly Emperor; then, a thousand years ago, another Emperor found a place in his theology for the Lady of the Many Colored Clouds. At the same time Taoist imagination ran riot, peopled the mountain with thousands of lesser spirits, and lost touch completely with the sublimely simple religion that had held sway for more than two thousand years.

What would be the mental and moral status of the Chinese people today if they had clung to the purity of their early faith? Can a Far Eastern people ever be permanently monotheistic, or must legend and fairy lore always bring lesser gods, as it has in Buddhism, Brahamism and Taoism? We meant to ponder on these theories going down the mountain, but we didn't because all our time was employed in wondering what would happen to us if a chair-coolie's sandal became untied and he happened to trip on it.

BRIGADE CHECKS FIRE ON JUNKS IN SOOCHOW CREEK

Fire aboard two junks in the Soochow Creek between the Thibet Road and Stone bridges gave Central Division of the Fire Department a staff hour's work last night.

The alarm was turned in at 8:25 p.m. and the brigade on arrival found two boats laden with straw fiercely ablaze, with the flames spreading to surrounding craft. The tide was out and the boats were on the mud, so it was impossible to shift the other junks nearby. By strenuous efforts, however, the firemen checked the spread of the fire and held the great bulk of the damage to the boats on which it originated, in order to do so having to unload a large quantity of straw.

A smaller blaze occupied the attention of Central Division briefly shortly before 7 o'clock in the evening when some wires on a transformer at the electricity sub-station near Hongkong and Yuenmingyuen Roads fused. Little work was necessary and the firemen turned the matter over to the Electricity Department men when they arrived.

Concert Pleases

The grand concert given at the Astor House last Sunday by Madame Trutneff and Messrs. Selivanoff and Berezovsky attracted a large audience who greatly enjoyed the evening's entertainment.

Madame Trutneff, soprano was in splendid voice, and well deserved the flowers which she received. Mr. Selivanoff, whose deep basso-baritone has often been heard to advantage in Shanghai, sang in his usual good tone, and was repeatedly encored on his song from the opera "The King Igor." Mr. Berezovsky, tenor, pleased the audience with his well rendered aria from "Pagliacci." The piano parts were ably undertaken by Mesdames Karadashevskaia and Berezovskaia.

Police Ask Court's Aid To Check Opium Traffic

The increasing seriousness of the opium traffic in the Settlement was stressed at the Mixed Court yesterday by Superintendent of Police Vaughan, who appeared in connection with a case wherein five men were charged with the sale and with abetting the sale of the drug in Central District, and asked that the Court co-operate more effectively with the police in their efforts to stamp out the evil. Severer sentences and heavier fines were asked by Superintendent Vaughan and at the conclusion of the case the principal accused was fined $500 by Assessor Tenney and Magistrate Kwan and the four charged with aiding in the sales were fined $50 each.

"To my own knowledge," Superintendent Vaughan stated to the Court, "twenty-two new shops for the sale of opium have opened up in the Central District. They have come over from Frenchtown and settled in the Tobok Gee Bai Ka and Si Gee Bai Ka as a result of the severe fines being imposed on opium offenders by the French Mixed Court. I ask the court to deal severely with these men and to aid the police in stopping opium sales."

CITES LENIENCY CASE

"We mean to go ahead but last Tuesday a man was before this court who had one previous conviction for selling opium, when he was fined $200, and he was only cautioned on his second appearance. Under the statutes these accused are liable to imprisonment in the first, second, third or fourth degree and a fine of $500."

Assessor Tenney and Magistrate Kwan asserted they would investigate the incident of the previous offender being only cautioned and signified their willingness to impose heavier fines in such cases, and suggested that Mr. Vaughan make the same remarks to other Assessors and Magistrates.

Sub-Inspector Wilson remarked that in former years much stiffer sentences and fines had been given, citing one case in which a man was fined $10,000.

Mr. F. W. Hadley, who was defending four of the men arrested, jumped to his feet to explain that he

"I was the attorney for the defense in that case," Mr. Hadley said, "and well remember it. My clients were fined $10,000 but, within a few days later, a British attorney asked for a reduction in the fine, Mr. Grant Jones, the Assessor, cut it to $5,000."

RECALLS COMBINE DAYS

"That was in a period of our history when the government of Shanghai loaned itself to the forces of corruption and when members of the 'combine' sold their opium with immunity, but opium sellers not belonging to the 'combine' were fined heavily. As soon as the 'combine' had unloaded its opium the heavy fines stopped. Such a situation does not exist now and that fine has no connection with or relation to this case."

Testimony introduced at the trial showed that the five men had been arrested when police raided the opium hong and confiscated opium valued at $3,000, considerable paraphernalia, a safe containing several packets of jewelry and $500, account books, and $300 in small money. One man, represented by Mr. W. S. Fleming, admitted being the owner of the hong and selling opium. The other four, shop assistants, also admitted their guilt, and it was on that evidence the police desired a heavy fine imposed.

OWNER FINED $500

Mr. Fleming asserted that because his client had freely admitted his guilt and agreed to reform he should receive consideration from the court. He argued that the confiscation of the opium, in addition to a small fine would serve the ends of justice. Assessor Tenney and Magistrate Kwan, taking into consideration all the facts and allegations involved, declared that they were in favor of a gradual increase in penalties and fined the owner $500 and confiscated the opium and the $200 found on the premises. The other four men were fined $30 each.

POLICE WITNESS ASSAULTED

Another grave aspect of the case from the police point of view was brought out when Superintendent Vaughan told the court of a murderous assault made upon a police witness. The man, named Li, had given the authorities information regarding the sale of opium and subsequent to the arrest of the five defendants he received threats of personal violence. The police investigated and as a result one man was arrested by Detective Sergeant Yorke. Following this arrest, last Sunday, as Li was walking on Canton Road he was attacked by four men, directed by a fifth, and was severely wounded with an axe and is now at Shantung Road Hospital in serious condition.

This man, Superintendent Vaughan said, was not in police hire, but is a reformer who gave his services to the police because of his desire to free his country from the curse of opium.

The man arrested and charged with subornation and threatening of a witness was ordered remanded for trial yesterday under $500 shop security.

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, April 21.—The ex-Tuchun of Szechuen, General Hsiung Ko-wu, has taken up arms to recover his lost kingdom from General Liu Hsiang, according to a private telegram received from Chungking. He is said to have gathered up some 20,000 men at Chengtu, where he has been in retirement, and is on his way to Chungking to attack General Liu.

General Liu is reported to have instructed General Tan Sin-fen, a divisional commander, to meet the ex-Tuchun half-way, and great alarm is felt by people living in the districts where the rival forces will pass. The Chambers of Commerce of both Chengtu and Chungking are seeking for ways and means of reaching an amicable settlement.

Asia Banking Corporation

April 25, 1922

Spot and forward bar silver were each up 3-8d. in London yesterday.

The New York price advanced to 68⅝ cents, and the London-New York cross rate to 443.

The only changes of importance in the official rates her today were a rise in the Gold Dollar rate to 74¾, and a drop in the Yen rate to 63¾.

Our market here opened on the firm side, business in Sterling being done as high as 3-5⅜ for May-June.

Gold Dollars at the opening were done at 76¼ for April, and 76 for May-June.

Later on in the morning, however, rates eased off, and just before the Tiffin interval as low as 3-5⅛ for April Sterling and 3-5 for June was done.

Gold Dollars at this time were done at 76 for April and 75¾ for May-June.

In the afternoon, however, rates steadied up again, there being then good sellers of Sterling at 3-5⅛ for April-May and 3-5 for June.

There were sellers of Gold Dollars at the same time at 76⅛ for April, 76 for May and 75¾ for June, the general market being steady.

China and India bought silver in London yesterday, and the market there is reported to have closed steady.

New York also report their market as steady.

Batu Anam Johore Rubber Estates, Limited

At the ninth annual meeting of the shareholders of the Batu Anam Johore Rubber Estates, Ltd. yesterday afternoon, the Chairman Mr. G. Grayrigge in the course of his speech remarked that the estate was not in first-class condition. He strongly urged compulsory restriction of rubber output to be applied universally The Company was producing only to sell at a loss.

The Chairman said:—

"Gentlemen,—Doubtless you are all well aware of the depression the rubber industry has been passing through the last two years, the cumulative effects of which are reflected in the accounts now in your hands.

"The immediate outlook still remains cloudy, though I live in hope that the Governments concerned may shortly get together and agree on some form of restriction which will tend to stabilise the market until such times arrive that the world wide unrest and consequent trade depression are allayed.

"Until confidence is reached in the world I do not see much chance of the rubber producing industry getting back to a profitable basis, for undoubtedly production is more than the world in its present condition can consume, and the only remedy for the current evil is restriction, either voluntary or compulsory, and as the former has been unsuccessfully tried, I am now strongly in favor of universal compulsory restriction, in which opinion my co-directors concur.

"If the financial position of this Company permitted, I would advocate a cessation of tapping, for it is little benefit producing only to sell at a loss, but we are forced to continue harvesting in order to help defray our overhead charges Nevertheless, we are keeping down production to the lowest point consistent with this and by the exercise of the most rigid economy the estate working last year emerges with the loss of only Taels 2,255.86. The economies instituted combined with full tapping might perhaps have made a similar small profit, but we have the satisfaction of knowing the company has done its bit towards helping an overloaded market and this policy the Board will continue until brighter times overtake us.

"The stress and strain rubber companies have undergone the past two years, which are likely to obtain for this year also, bring up forcibly the necessity of keeping sufficient liquid funds in hand as a safeguard against contingencies arising in the future. I may tell you this Board intends when finances permit to lay aside a reasonable sum per annum towards building up a reserve fund for this express purpose. Fortunately the past policy of the Company had been to carry a goodly sum forward each year and it is due to this policy that we have so far been able to weather the present storm fairly comfortably. An analysis of the accounts submitted will show you that the Company after providing for all monies owing, has liquid assets to the extent of nearly Taels 23,000, not too a big an amount, but enough I hope to see us through to better times.

NO NEED FOR ANXIETY

"I am sorry that I cannot report the estate to be in an absolutely first class condition, not that there is any need for anxiety on this score, but I gather from the visiting agents' last report that a lot of minor things that might have been done have been left undone, that bark consumption has been slightly over normal and that some damage has been done to the immature area by deer. These little relapses are probably now all rectified.

"The introduction of alternate day tapping together with restriction render comparisons of costs as hitherto published of no further value, but I think adequate information on all points is given in the report.

"The cost of production is materially reduced, i. e. 8.91 d against 14.94 d. in 1920. This year I expect to see a further substantial reduction.

"Turning to the balance sheet, except for the sum of Taels 3,410.97 spent on the immature area, capital expenditure was altogether avoided. Our assets, such as buildings, factory, plant machinery, etc. are virtually written off and if the first resolution which I shall propose shortly be adopted, these assets, the value of which must be considerable, will stand in the books at Tael 1 each.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED

"The amount brought forward from 1920 was Tls. 37,790.98 and deducting from this the loss on 1921 working viz: Taels 6,354,-22, there remains a balance of Taels 31,436.56 which the Board recommends be dealt with as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Write off buildings and furniture | Tls. 237.60 |
| Carry forward | 31,198.96 |
| | Tls. 31.436.56 |

"Of this carry forward, I would emphasise that only some Taels 23,000 is represented by liquid assets, but experience has taught us to keep a small book profit in hand to offset against book exchange fluctuations.

"Before concluding, gentlemen, I desire to voice the Board's appreciation, in which I am sure you also will concur, of the successful efforts of the manager, the Straits agents and of our secretaries and general managers to reduce expenditure to meet present day conditions.

"I now beg to propose that the printed report and audited statement of accounts for the financial year ended December 31, 1921 as circulated to shareholders be adopted."

This was seconded by Mr. R. N. Truman and adopted.

Mr. G. Grayrigge, the retiring Director, was re-elected a Director of the Company.

Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Mattews, the Company's Auditors, were re-elected for the ensuing year.

Inter-Racial Co-operation

BY MARY NINDE GAMEWELL

THE other day I heard a charming story. Some children, it seems, in Kansas, U.S.A., contributed a sum of money equal to six hundred Mexican dollars—all in pennies—to help multiply daily vacation Bible schools and elementary schools in China. Then the children of China, not to be outdone in good-will and helpfulness, gave in "cash" and coppers more than one hundred dollars, fifteen of which came from the children of Shanghai—to promote the work of daily vacation Bible schools in America. Was it not a beautiful instance of international reciprocity! And who shall say that the small gift of the East to the West was not needed? On the contrary I am inclined to think it may have gone farther and meant more in its actual spiritual uplift than the larger one.

A great, crying need of the world today is inter-racial and international co-operation. Were it realised in politics, how quickly would vanish mutual suspicion and distrust, selfishness and greed. Happily, we have already caught the fore-gleams of a better day of understanding between the nations. China is emerging. Some one has written, "At the Pacific Conference, for the first time in history, China took her rightful place as a sovereign nation among the other world powers." At the two recent world Conferences her plenipotentiaries and delegates, men like Dr. C. T. Wang, Dr. Wang Chung-hui and Dr. David Yui, made their influence a factor to be reckoned with. It was significant that during the Washington Conference Ambassador Alfred Sze received letters from numerous organisations and individuals all over the United States, saying, "We are praying for you." He once drew the attention of an American friend to a pile of these letters on his desk, with the remark, "What do they mean?" "This is a Christian country," was the reply, "and it is true that everywhere Christians are praying for you and your cause. It is as if they said, 'You work and we will stand by you and back you up with our prayers.'"

Mankind cannot get on without economic co-operation. During the recent war the government at Washington commissioned a Chinese woman doctor to study medicine abroad—to make a scientific investigation of the food value and uses of the soy bean with a view to introducing it into America. I never hear in the interior villages of China the click, click of a foreign sewing-machine, or see a new vessel built with American money at the Kiangnan dry-docks slide down the ways into the Whangpoo, without a new sense of the value of industrial reciprocity.

What would Europe during the last trying days of the war have done without China's hard-working coolies? We shall never know how much we owe to these Chinese lads and to those others who at the front fought valiantly under the flag of the country of their adoption. A mother in New York City, whose husband is the Chinese pastor of a large institutional church for the Chinese, said to me smilingly but with tear-dimmed eyes, "I have just sent two children in opposite directions, my daughter to China as a missionary, my son to France as a soldier." My heart was stirred when in the summer of 1917 I watched a long war procession on the streets of Philadelphia, and saw among a troop of women nurses, three Chinese girls in full Red Cross uniform.

What was it that effectually broke down the wall of partition between East and West and made Kipling, while a good poet, a poor prophet? When we hear it said that "China was opened at the point of the lancet," it is simply another way of telling us that the Christian Church through its medical missionaries pushed in the entering wedge. Robert Morrison, the first Protestant missionary to China, received no welcome from the uncompromising, uncompromising Cantonese. But the years rolled by and deeper entered the wedge and wider grew the opening as schools were started, hospitals founded and Christian chapels built.

What do we find today, in the spring of 1922? Seven thousand men and women from the West, representing 130 Mission Boards and other organisations, and 25,000 Chinese Christian workers, all joining hands to minister to the spiritual, mental and physical needs of 366,000 Chinese Christians besides reaching out to the teeming millions of the unevangelised. Is it not an amazing, soul-moving spectacle? Nor is the benefit of Christian co-operation confined to China. If space permitted I could tell wonderful stories of the influence for good exerted by Chinese Christians, specially students, in foreign lands, on their friends and fellow students of other nationalities.

The National Christian Conference, with its thousand delegates, is convening in Shanghai. It will be the greatest demonstration of Christian co-operation that China has yet known. A broad-minded Anglican prelate, in urging church unity at a gathering in New York, said something to this effect: "When there lies between us a gulf, I will stand on the edge on my side and reach over it as far as I can and you will reach out to me from the other side, till at last our hands touch and we form a living bridge across which men can walk."

I like to believe that we of the East and West will draw so close to each other that no bridge will be necessary, but standing shoulder to shoulder we shall work together as one for the redemption of China and of the whole world.

Amy Lowell As A Leader In Contemporary Letters

(The following appreciation of Miss Amy Lowell by Norreys Jephson O'Conor appears in the Landmark. This magazine is the organ of the English-speaking Union, and is published simultaneously in London and New York. The appearance of Mr. O'Conor's article in its columns emphasises the international recognition accorded Miss Lowell as a leading poet and critic of contemporary literature.)

Of late, the fancy of most English men of letters visiting the United States has been caught by Chicago and the literature of the Middle West. In these days of conscious nationality, the Middle West seems more strikingly American than the Atlantic seaboard, which has been for a longer time more closely in touch with Europe and the British Isles, and so more like them in the outward signs of civilisation. However, to the observer who looks below the surface, the East is still truly American; British culture is the natural heritage of the thirteen original States and their seafaring population, but this British culture is tempered by the peculiar conditions in the United States as a whole; the industrial activity, the vast stretches of inland plain, the memories and stories of the Indians. An English critic lamented, not long since, the passing of the old school of writers that gave distinction to Boston and its environs; but the influence of New England in contemporary literature, though less in proportion than during the days of Hawthorne and Holmes, is yet potent; the revival of interest in poetry, which began in the United States a few years before the recent war, has been sustained and increased largely through the personality and zeal of a New England poet and critic, Amy Lowell.

Miss Lowell was endowed by fortune for her career. Her forbears, successful New England merchants, amassed wealth, enabling her to have the advantages not only of the education given at school but of that more valuable training which comes from the opportunity to travel and of meeting men and women of achievement. Naturally a book-lover, she has been able to acquire what is now one of the finest private libraries in America; her collection of Keats manuscripts is surpassed by only one other in the world, that of the Marquis of Crewe. These artificial advantages by which Miss Lowell helped to prepare herself for the profession of letters would, however, have counted for little had she not also possessed a nature remarkably sensitive to impression, the true inheritance of a poet. Coupled with these gifts is another too rarely granted writers, one possibly inherited from her trading ancestors, tenacity of purpose.

Contrary to the prevailing idea that poets publish early in life, Miss Lowell reached her thirties before she determined to devote herself to poetry. It is worthy of stress in this year of the centenary of his death that her passion for Keats, leading to the study of his manuscripts, particularly of his painstaking revisions, fixed her purpose. The format and type of Miss Lowell's first book, "A Dome of Many-Coloured Glass," publishes in 1912, followed that of Keats's "Poems," and her subsequent volumes of poetry have been of similar appearance.*

Although this early book contains none of the free verse or polyphonic prose since associated with Miss Lowell's name, yet here is the germ of her later work. In spite of a nimbleness in rhyme almost equal to that of Robert Browning, traditional meters clog her utterances; she needs freer expression. Her natural tendency toward run-on lines and irregular rhythm makes her lyrics seem fettered by conventional rhyme and stanza. Even in blank verse she is ever varying the beat of the iambic pentameter line.

With her 1914 volume, "Sword Blades and Poppy Seed," Miss Lowell begins to write frequently in vers libre or "unrhymed cadence," and three of her poems are in the form she was later to call "polyphonic prose." Despite these innovations, the longer narratives in rhyme, stanza and regular meter, such as "The Great Adventure of Max Breuck" and "After Hearing a Waltz by Bartok," show at its best her power of vitalising the emotions of characters and placing them against a brilliant, realistic background. "Clear, With Light Variable Winds" is a hint of that interest in the strange which finds fuller expression in her latest book, "Legends." In "Sword Blades and Poppy Seed" Miss Lowell for the first time discusses her poetic method in a preface, as has since become her custom.

*Miss Lowell's love for Keats has more than a merely personal interest for Englishmen, as it was perhaps due to her exertions more than those of any other individual that it was found possible to purchase the Keats House in Hampstead for preservation as a national memorial (see the Landmark for April, 1921).

Much misunderstanding on the part of her readers and critics is attributable to ignorance of her prefaces.

In 1916 Miss Lowell published "Men, Women and Ghosts" (a title indicative of her belief that humanity, both in and out of the flesh, is more important than nature), which opens with "Patterns," already a classic of the new school, although rhyme and rhythms of conventional poetry predominate. The subject of the poem, which tells of an English lady of the seventeenth or enghteenth century who receives the news of the death of her lover "in a pattern called a war,'" shows the poet's exceptional ability in taking a theme from the past and making it a present reality.

During the last year of the war appeared "Can Grande's Castle," in polyphonic prose, which shows the ripening of Miss Lowell's genius for descriptive narrative. Two of the four I am poems in this collection should have particular interest for English readers, "Sea-Blue and Blood-Red" and "Hedge Island," which is almost as good an interpretation of the British spirit as was ever written by any one born in England. Here is the climax of the poem, the passing of the stage-coach:

"But in the distance there is a puff of steam. Just a puff, but it will do. Post-boys, coachmen, guards, chaises, melt like meadow rime before the sun.

"You spun your webs over England, hedge to hedge. You kept England bound together by your spinning wheels. But it is gone. They have driven a wedge of iron into your heart. They have dired up the sea, and made pathways in the swimming air. They have tapped the barrels in your cellars and your throats are parched and bleeding. But still the hedges blow for the Spring, and dusty soldiers smell your roses as they tramp to Aldershot or Dorchester.

"England forever! Star-pointed and shining. Flinging her hedges out and asunder to embrace the world."

Miss Lowell admits in her preface that she has drawn her material from books—as if she were thus going against the spirit of the day—but she justifies herself by saying that though she is living in the midst of events greater than she has taken from histories, "these books have become a reality, in a way that they never could have become before, and the stories I have dug out of dusty volumes seem as actual as my own existence." To her readers she has communicated this reality with astonishng vividness; she appeals to all the senses as well as to the emotions.

"Pictures of the Floating World," issued in the Autumn of 1919, is a collection of lyrics written, almost without exception, in free forms, and centering in great part about the author's own house and garden in Brookline. The temper of the book has been compared to that of Herrick.

In the current year, "Legends" marks Miss Lowell's mastery of her art; although the inspiration is entirely from folklore, here is variety both of subject and of form. One seems to move amid the life and beliefs of ancient China, the exotic barbarism of the days of Peruvian Incas, or the matter-of-fact bustle of modern Boston, with the unconsciousness of poetic form that shows with what skill the poet has achieved harmony between thought and expression.

Thus briefly to summarise Miss Lowell's accomplishment as a poet is to record barely half her service to contemporary poetry; for she has also published two acute and illuminating books of prose criticism, "Six French Poets" and "Tendencies in Modern American Poetry." In these books she interprets the work of Frenchmen whose technique has been her especial study and inspiration, and the aims, with some account of the accomplishment, of Americans who, like herself, are endeavoring to reinvigorate and widen the bounds of poetry. These volumes she has supplemented by reviewing new books of verse for newspapers and periodicals and by lecturing. The sensitiveness which makes her adept at portraying emotions and sensations in her own poetry makes her peculiarly quick to appreciate the poetic impressions of others. Whatever the differences of opinion as to Miss Lowell's place as a poet, there is scarcely a dissentient voice in acknowledging her one of the foremost critics in the United States. Her penetrating reviews have helped to make American newspaper and magazine editors discontented with the book criticism of ill-trained reporters, often lacking discrimination, the signed review by an author or university professor of standing has now become common in journalistic and periodical literature of the United States.

The energy which Miss Lowell has shown in visiting various States of the Union and setting forth her artistic aims, especially during the days when free verse was misunderstood and looked at askance by writers and critics of established reputation, can hardly be overpraised. Her enthusiasm and courage in upholding her artistic beliefs have done much to win respect for the profession of poetry, and her influence upon individual poets, even upon those who have never adopted the innovations in form which she has made familiar, has been noteworthy.

None of the writers of the Middle West has done more, if, indeed, as much, to invigorate American poetry, to foster sound originality and experimentation, as this inheritor of the conservative culture and traditions of Massachusetts Bay.

Radio Telephony In America

Amazing Development Within Past Few Months Adds 200,000 New Private Stations—Sermons, Operas, Dramatic Successes Heard Via Wireless

BY A. LEONARD SMITH JR.

Although radio telephony and its phraseology, broadcasting, aerial antennae and wave lengths, are common topics of conversation today it is extremely hard, even yet, to write in popular terms of this baby of the sciences and its extraordinarily rapid growth.

We know that great radio corporations have already established plants from which each night are sent broadcast out through the air overhead grand opera, light opera, sermons, market reports, as well as children's bedtime stories. The rendition of this ether program can be heard by any one who fastens a set of radio telephone receivers to his or her ears, or who can get within range of one of the large horns with which some of the radio receiving stations are equipped.

From estimates given by these same corporations we know that there are today approximately 700,000 American homes, schools, churches, halls and office buildings equipped as receiving stations. More than 15,000 stations have been licensed by the United States Government for transmitting wireless messages of one sort or another. Much of the popularity of the whole thing has come in the last two or three months, during which time, it is said, about 200,000 receiving sets have been installed.

Take up the headpiece of a radio receiving set and listen a minute. On a small wave length using little power, the wireless brings you an amateur's experimental chatter as he plays with his wonderful new toy. With a thousand times the speed of any wind that ever blew it bears the recital of poetry or neighborhood gossip straight to the delighted ears of some other enthusiast, who, when the experiment is over, will, you may be sure, check up with his friend on every point. On a higher wavelength, 860 meters, in fact, come the band concerts, the grand opera arias and all the features of the professional stations' nightly program. Increase the wave length still more, and you get into the realm ruled by the crash of the wireless telegraph spark, hurling its code signals from the great Nauen station near Berlin or from the big British plant in the bleak Welsh hills near Carnarvon to Deal Beach, New Brunswick, Tuckerton or Arlington.

Through it all, to a greater or less degree, runs a continuous humming or huzzing, that sometimes rattles and crackles so loud as to drown out completely whatever signals you listen for.

"What are those noises?" you ask the operator in bewilderment.

He listens a moment. "Its 'Old Man Static,'" he tells you. Then as you look even more blank, he shrugs his shoulders. "You know as much as I do," he says.

NOISES OF SPACE

Of course, he refers to static electricity and you are fascinated, though a trifle awestruck, to realise that you are listening to sounds that, surely, were never intended to be heard by a human being. The delicate mechanism of the radio has caught and brought to the ears of us earth dwellers the noises that roar in the space between the worlds. The sounds range from an actual whistle in the region of the Aurora Borealis to a bacon-and-egg-frying sizzle around the Gulf Stream.

Perhaps we shall go further, some day, and comprehend these sneers and chuckles of "Old Man Static." Then, it may be, we shall understand, also, some of the freaks of wireless telephony. For example, not long ago James Miller of Aberdeen, Scotland, was "on the air" one night when there came to his ears through the dark the sound of a distant voice. It seemed to have been borne in on the moonbeams. Miller adjusted his apparatus, "tuned it," to increase the strength of those faint articulation. Then his face grew tense with wonder, for he heard a man in Keyport, N. J., 3,500 miles away, calling to a brother enthusiast somewhere over there in America to "stand by" for a demonstration.

It was Hugh Robinson of Keyport, and his conversation, as well as the records of the phonograph he played for his friend in New Jersey were heard just as clearly and distinctly by the man in Scotland. The same conversation and music were heard that night by a ship 1,900 miles out in the Atlantic and by another vessel in the harbor of Tela, Honduras.

Robinson was using a small set, deriving its power from an ordinary lighting circuit. He purchased it with a guaranteed range of 100 miles. Radio men say that his achievement is just about a record. They can't explain how it happened. Perhaps the atmospheric conditions were just right—"Old Man Static" in an indulgent mood—but it happened; and that's plenty for the average layman who is unable to sit down and work out theories of air currents and "enveloping strata" of other.

RAPID DEVELOPMENT

Work on the development of the radio telephone commenced at the beginning of the present century, when a number of scientists started out to make the ether a medium for the voice as it was for the Marconi spark. The job was tackled, at first, principally in college laboratories, although one or two men connected with commercial companies lent their hands and brain to the task. Put as simply as possible, the problem confronting them was to transform the thousand-feet-a-second sound waves into Hertzian waves traveling each second 186,000 miles. Then the Hertzian waves had to be geared down at the receiving end so that the vibration could be detected and comprehended by the human ear.

Radio men agree that it was the invention of the vacuum tube by Dr. Lee De Forest that made wireless telephony possible. This instrument, familiar to all radio enthusiasts, looks not unlike a small electric light bulb. It contains a filament, also like a light bub, around which is a grid—a spiral or finely woven screen of wire. Outside the filament and the grid, enclosing both, is a small metal cylinder known as the plate. The vacuum tube acts in triple capacity as a detector, generator and amplifier.

If it is true that the vacuum tube made wireless telephony possible, it is just as certain that it was the war that put that science on the map. Under the stress of the nation's need, the toy became the mighty machine, recompensing the universe, as it were, for the years of sickness and sorrow, devastation and death. And it has always been this way. There never was a war but it added tenfold to the store of knowledge of humanity. It was a spark struck from the stone-headed battle hammer of some pre-historic warrior that gave man the idea of kindling fire, and thus laid the foundations of our civilisation.

As soon as America entered the world conflict, the Government sent word to the great electrical companies that it wanted a reliable, effective, radio telephone right away. Immediately hundreds of experts, engineers, physicians and chemists began to eat and drink and dream radio telephony. And they made the telephones according to every Government specification. Say the radio men, we were five years ahead of the enemy in this science during the years of the war.

Then came peace. The companies that had worked so hard and so loyally to help the Government found that their labors were going to bear fruit a hundredfold in the shape of a brand-new means of rapid and interesting communication. The battle ended, man was ready to begin the subjugation of the air.

Has he succeeded? You have only to go out into the night and look up at the sky. Above you in the blue, flying across the face of the moon, are the scudding ether-borne messages; neighborly gossip, "Celeste Aida," by Caruso, reproduced on the phonograph, its liquid notes transmitted far across the sea, perhaps even sounding in the land of the singer's birth. Up there in the starlight night hisses the great transatlantic wireless, dot, dash, dot dot dash, telling of the death of a King or of the marriage of a Princess. Borne on the chill winds there are also the softest of lullabies and the sweetest of thousand-year-old fairy stories told by "The Man in the Moon"

Radio Telephony In America

to thousands of delighted, though sleepy little children snuggled close by their own firesides.

It is all there in the air above, but you may not hear it with your human ears. You must turn to the magic that has been created to serve you. You must seek the powers that science has harnessed, that eclipse with their magic the slaves of Aladdin's lamp, the powers that enable you to hear the very music of the spheres.

COST OF EQUIPMENT

To install a wireless receiving station is not a complicated operation. One needs only the price—anywhere from G.$25 to G.$250 upward.

It is a bit more difficult to get a sending set, but not by any means impossible. You must be able to read a few words of the International Communication Code, enough to understand any strident telegraphic orders "to get off the air" from the big wireless at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, which does not condescend to the wave length of the telephone. You will get this command whenever there's a ship sending S. O. S. from far out at sea. Then, it's up to you, as an amateur operator, to refrain from transmitting, although you may listen all you please to the hiss and crackle of the dot and dash signal as the huge naval station speeds ships and men to the rescue.

At present, no amateur may send on more than a 200 meter wave length, nor is he permitted to develop more than one kilowatt of power. He is the lowest in the scale, and if he is anywhere in their neighborhood, he can no more interrupt the 360 meter wave length broadcasting concert or the 1,000 to 25,000 meter wave length transatlantic wireless than the buzzing of a mosquito can drown out the roar of a subway express train.

Sometimes the amateur tries to get just a little more power out of his instrument. It's natural, just as it's natural for the owner of a new automobile to "give 'er a little gas." When he yields to temptation, the amateur is apt, like his brother in the motor car, to attract the heavy notice of the traffic officer of his own particular thoroughfare. In this case it is the radio inspector of the district. There is one of these inspectors in the Custom House of each of the following cities: Boston, New York, Savannah, Baltimore, New Orleans, San Francisco, Seattle, Cleveland and Chicago. He has a radio telephone and by adjusting his instruments can tell accurately whether anybody in his district is "exceeding the speed limit." The "exceeder" gets a quick call down. If he disregards it he loses his license to use the air for any other purpose than to breathe.

SOME ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Here are a few things that this infant science has accomplished to date. Everything mentioned is a matter of record:

A man in Glenbrook, Conn., using an ordinary amateur's outfit, one kilowatt power, guaranteed range 100 miles, sent his voice and the music of a phonograph on the winds of the world 2,500 miles to British Guiana.

Sunday service has been transmitted several times by wireless to homes distant several miles from the church.

The steamship Gloucester, ninety miles off the Port of New York, talked with various stations of the Western Electric Company across the American continent, and its signals and words and music were heard in the Catalina Islands, off the coast of California.

Talks between stations in England and Holland, and in Germany and Spain have been fairly common.

Conversation has been held between the Gare du Nord in Paris and French railroad trains.

Students of Union College, Schenectady, equipped a baby carriage with a radio telephone and trundled it along a road—they declare there was a baby in it—to the tune of lullabies played several miles away.

Both the Democratic and Republican candidates for Mayor of New York used the wireless telephones last Fall to make a political speech.

A woman out in Indiana heard a sermon preached into the transmitter of a radio telephone in Newark, by her son, a clergyman of that city.

Music sent several hundred miles by wireless was so clear on a vessel at sea that a dance was held.

With all the things a radio telephone has done or can do or is going to do, there are some things it cannot do, and they should be listed here. In the first place, it can't give you any privacy. The world's information is yours if you have a radio telephone, and also whatever information you intrust to the air belongs to the whole world. Then, two transmitting sets of anywhere near the same power cannot operate together in the same neighborhood. The ether lanes seem to congest very easily. Third, no means have yet been found of counteracting the effect of high buildings on the passage of the vibrations carrying wireless messages. The best receiving set in the world is helpless when it is placed low down near a skyscraper that towers between it and the sources of whatever signals it is supposed to receive. This is what has forced them to give up for the present the idea of equipping policemen with miniature radio telephones. And, lastly, there's our old friend, "Static."

Even with these handicaps, the newest science is making giant strides of progress. The men working at it are working with the very fundamental laws of nature. And not the least fascinating part of their work is the glimpse it gives them, now and then, into realms that were never before dreamed of in any man's philosophy.

China Invited To Holland Exhibition

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, April 21.—The Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce has announced that China has been invited by the Netherlands through the Dutch minister in Peking to be represented at the Third International Industrial Exhibition which will be held next September at Amsterdam.

The Chinese Government is requested to send specimens of Chinese manufacture for the Exhibition and the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce has instructed the various chambers of commerce throughout China to make all preparations for such exhibits at once in order that the specimens may be shipped in time to be in Holland for the Exhibition.

Soldiers Have Tea, Though Trains Halt

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, April 21.—A returning traveller from Hankow reports that his train was delayed along the line because of the exigencies of war displayed in a rather unusual form. The train was stopped and the water let out of the boilers of the engine in order to provide hot water to make tea for the soldiers along the line.

U-Boat Chasers Now Rum Runners

(China Press Service)

New York, April 24.—The Customs House announced that a plot has been unearthed whereby liquor was being smuggled from Bermuda and Cuba on former submarine chasers commanded by officers wearing the uniform of the United States navy. The former sub-chaser 101 renamed the Fidus was seized with the commander and seven of the crew.

Customs officials said that the Fidus told them that pirates had boarded the chaser yesterday twenty miles off Montauk Point and had bound the commander to the mast and seized the liquor cargo.

Angora Insists Upon Evacuation

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 23.—A message from Constantinople states that the Angora Government's reply to the Allied note insists on the necessity of commencing the evacuation of Asia Minor simultaneously with the armistice, but proposes to meet the Allied delegates at Ismid for the purpose of preparatory pourparlers and then immediate peace negotiations if a ground for understanding is found.

BRITISH NOMINEE FOR SALT BUREAU IS TURNED DOWN

Opposition Develops To Appointment Of W. R. Strickland

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, April 21.—From semi-official sources it is learned that the cabinet yesterday passed a unanimous resolution stating its opposition to the appointment of Mr. W. R. Strickland to the position of Acting Associate Foreign Chief Inspector of the Salt Administration and that the Minister of Finance will adhere to his position of not appointing the candidate of Sir Reginald Gamble and the British Legation.

It was repeated that there is very strong opposition to the appointment of Mr. Strickland among the members of the Salt Administration, both foreign and Chinese, and that there is little likelihood that he would ever be given the post.

There is no stipulation to the effect that the foreign inspector must be a British subject although that he should be has long been a tacit understanding between the British and Chinese Governments. In the same way the Chinese Government is under no obligation to consult with the British Legation in regard to the appointment of the man to fill this post. He is given his position by the Ministry of Finance and notification of such appointments is given to the British Legation simply as a matter of courtesy.

Great surprise is expressed in official Chinese circles at the attitude of the British Legation.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, April 21.—In reply to enquiries at the British Legation regarding a press agency article of April 20 on the subject of the Salt administration, Reuter is informed as follows:

The attitude of the British Minister is based on the notes and minutes on record in the Waichiaopu at the time when the Salt Administration was reorganised in its present form in the spring of 1913.

The acting Minister of Finance having overlooked the existence of these documents obtained the consent of a certain gentleman to be appointed as acting Associate Chief Inspector with reversion to a substantive post in the event of Sir. R. Gamble's resignation, unbeknown to His Majesty's Minister.

The latter has drawn the attention of the Waichiaopu to the documents in question wherein it is clearly shown that such appointments will be made in agreement with the legation concerned.

The British Minister has never wished to advance the claims of any particular individual against the desire of the Chinese Government. His only interest is in friendly agreement with the Chinese Government to assist in finding the most suitable candidate for this very important and responsible position.

Finance Ministry Employes Are Paid; Immediately Strike

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, April 21.—The Ministry of Finance has apparently come into an inheritance, because the officials of that Department who have been going without pay for a considerable period, received yesterday, according to reports one and a half month pay.

Encouraged by this blessing they met at once and demanded the payment of one more month's salaries and they insist that they be given a guarantee of regular payment before they will return to work.

The members of the Ministry of the Interior have received only half a month's pay and have not given up their strike.

In the Ministry of Justice the Vice-Minister has ordered every member of the Ministry to attend office. But the members have been unable to secure any money on the bonds that have been allotted to them, and the situation is said to be somewhat serious.

Bergdoll Fortune Liable To Seizure

(China Press Service)

Washington, April 24.—Justice Baily of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia ruled that an alien property custodian cannot be required to surrender the property of Grove C. Bergdoll valued at $750,000 if the government proves that Bergdoll has been convicted of desertion and is at present a fugitive from justice.

The Supreme Court also has denied Erwin Bergdoll's appeal for a writ of habeas corpus. He is serving four years at Leavenworth.
